About the Event

Taiwan's biologics sector is moving into a more globally connected phase of growth. With national priorities increasingly focused on AI-enabled precision health, international market access, stronger CDMO and smart-manufacturing capabilities, and a more integrated biomedical innovation ecosystem, the opportunity is shifting from developing promising science to translating it into scalable, high-quality and globally competitive biologics. At the same time, large-molecule pipelines are becoming more complex, spanning next-generation antibodies, ADCs, bispecific and multispecific therapeutics, novel proteins, and advanced therapy biologics. Now in its 14 th year, Biologics World Taiwan 2027 returns as the annual meeting point for Taiwan and the region's biologics community, connecting biopharma and biotech leaders across discovery, process development, manufacturing, CMC, clinical development, regulatory strategy and commercialisation. The 2027 programme follows the biologics journey from molecule innovation to global market readiness. Across two focused conference days, it will address next-generation modalities, upstream and downstream excellence, AI-enabled and data-driven bioprocessing, process intensification, analytical and quality strategies, CMC and technology transfer, clinical translation, evolving regulatory pathways and international market access. Biologics World Taiwan 2027 brings the industry together to turn biologics innovation into scalable manufacturing, successful clinical development and global market opportunities.
